KeyMacro is a simple and effective Windows keyboard macro recorder. It can record keyboard sequences and mouse clicks in a single or multiple documents. You can easily record frequently performed keyboard sequences and mouse actions and play them back as keystrokes. With KeyMacro, it is possible to record long sequences of actions and trigger them at a desired time. It does not require any additional software, it records directly in the current document. The recording can be saved in a number of formats, including text, Rich Text Format, HTML, CSV or text files. The saved macros can be played back on any PC, even if that computer is not connected to a network. Once the macro is saved, the sequence is played back on the PC, which the original files were saved on. The macros can be saved to any format that supports encoding or Unicode (UTF-8). This feature enables the user to record strings in any language. KeyMacro supports some of the most common keyboard macros. It can record letters, symbols, numbers, shortcuts, special characters, mouse clicks, scrolling and other actions. KeyMacro allows you to record macros in either Unicode (UTF-8) or ASCII formats. The software uses the latest Unicode 6.3 standard, which is currently the most up-to-date version available. KeyMacro's features: Record to text, Rich Text Format, HTML, CSV, text and Unicode. Import and export to text files. Record multiple macros. Keyboard macros can be triggered at a specific time. Record mouse clicks. Store and play back macros to any computer. Modify a number of saved macros. Export and import macros into other software. Share macros via email. Record sequences that repeat until you cancel them. Create macros using recorded mouse actions. Record macros for use with AppleScript. Record macros from other software. Record multiple windows. Record multiple documents. Record during document editing. Record from active applications.
