Ever wanted a dice roller that can play any game you want? That helps you keep all the results in one handy place, and even has custom dice? Do you love playing tabletop RPG games? Ever wanted to roll some dice in your favourite RPG, but you don't own a suitable set? Are you jealous of your friends who get to play with custom dice in their games? Well, Sophie's Dice can help! Read on. Rolling Dice with Sophie's Dice In Sophie's Dice, roll any number of any kind of die, and store your results in a spreadsheet. You can do one, a few or many rolls, and collect your results in any order in any column you like! Then you can drop the entire sheet (and all your roll data) into a new spreadsheet, or keep it, or even just email it to yourself. [...] For the average game, one or a few rolls will do. But you may want to roll out of 100 (if your game's rules allow you to!), to simulate a long adventure! You can even roll 10-sided dice if you want a cool, stylised representation of a die. [...] You might also want to collect the results of rolls in a way that goes beyond the usual rolling of a single die. [...] In that case, you need to calculate multiple results at once, and make custom dice that show more than one. [...] These are called "Rolling Groups", and are explained in Chapter 6 of the User Guide. There are also many other kinds of dice that can be rolled. For example, you can roll all dice of a particular weight, or all non-negative dice with a particular number of faces. [...] In addition, dice have sides that show up on rolls, as well as numbers that appear. The numbers on a die can be blank, and even customised. In many games, you can roll standard dice and also specialised dice. For example, d100, d20 etc... You can also use standard dice together with specialised dice: [...] In short, you can have a simple 6-sided dice, plus a specialised 7-sided dice, plus a d100, plus a d20, plus a d6, plus a d4, plus a d2. [...] You can even use virtual dice to make custom dice, with images and audio that will help you role-play.

Play the brick breaker game. Basically your paddle is controlled using the mouse. Try to break the pots of bricks surrounding the ball. This game has a simple concept with a simple controls. In every round of play, get as many bricks as you can. Continue until the bricks around the ball drop to zero. After that round, resetting the pot. Play this I am a very patient person and I hope this game does not bother you when you have no energy. version 1.0.5

Version: 1.0.5 Last updated: 27th May, 2020 This is the most "updated" version of my video game so far. This is my first ever release and the first of many games to come.
NOTE: If you want to uninstall this game, you have to go to "C:\Users\elenturk" if not its for backup purposes. You will have to delete this game from there. This game is available for both macOS and Windows. It uses a cross platform library (Unity) for development. It is relatively easy to learn and is quite fun. You can find this game in my store here and my other games in my store here You can find me here Release Notes: Version: 1.0.5 FIXED: Graphics bug when the wall move up animation is played. Also some early versions had a bug that prevented the game from starting. This has been fixed now. FIXED: Loads of packaging bugs. VERSION 1.0.4: FIXED: Many more packaging bugs. Minor bug fixes. VERSION 1.0.3: VERSION 1.0.2 FIXED: Minor bug with the start screen and a help option VERSION 1.0.1 FIXED: Minor bug with play mode. Thanks to user381576 for this. VERSION 1.0.0: First official version released to the public. This was a very long project. I spent almost a year on this project. Most of that time was spent polishing this game Donations are greatly appreciated. (but I don't really have the time to maintain the repository) If you want to see

You can find links to all the products for any of the cards mentioned in this article in the U/I Store! HALL OF FAME EARLY At the beginning of 2017 Dan Salvato, one of the legends of the Eternal forums and among the most vocal and respected the design team's well-wishers on the forums, posted the following: This is the first time I've ever made a draft list. My problem is finding a way to keep a list of commons that are overplayed and not every single symbol may be worth a slot, but the experience is daunting. For instance, Liber Arturus is good, and Snaar is a good card on some decks, but the whole concept is kind of... f*cked. I can't think of a single good reason to pick Liber Arturus, but outside of UBR and a few other decks, one green card never makes a difference when getting to two, rarely matters, and is only helpful in the post-mid game at best. The problem comes with all of the remaining uncommons, because the deck-building element of this league is omitted. If Liliana the Last Hope got a spot in this league, there might not be a problem, but it doesn't. But there's fierceness in this league, all of the commons are strong, and there are enough cards that are midrange- or control- specific that I can't get enough cards to combine into format combinations that end up overlooking snaar or regenerating Hydra. Maybe that's because it's more difficult to beat control and midrange decks than aggro, particularly in this format with low creature counts, but I've never been able to figure out a good map for the format. Hopefully I can convince at least a few people to play this format. You can read the full thread here. There's some interesting stuff in here, but when following up with Dan soon enough to talk further, he brushed off the format with a "It's admittedly a terrible type of play to even be talking about, but... what's the incentive?" These are the exact reasons I'm writing this
