In my program, I often need to convert path to FileName. For example: Path myPath = Paths.get("D:\\Program"); FileName myFilename = Paths.get("D:\\Program").getFileName(); The two lines of code above get executed at the same time. Is there a simpler way to rewrite them? I've tried using a StringBuilder, but it didn't work so well. A: FileName.getParentFile().getPath() The Path object you pass to the Path constructor is just the path of the path.

The Path object actually exists as one of the constructors for the FileName class.

The Path constructor we used is just a way to get the path from a path. Q:

Appending to last line of file when looping over generators (python) I am using this code to read a list of IP addresses in a text file.

import re
for line in open('file.txt', 'r'): ip_list = re.findall('\d{1,3}\.\d{1,3}\.\d{1,3}\.\d{1,3}', line)
    for ip_
