* The whole production is in English only. Though I speak pretty good Japanese, I had to stick to English due to where I was in game production and I think it seems better in English anyways. * I did not include items or shops that are not available to acquire in-game. Some other missions can be completed if they're unlocked but I didn't show those because it would lead to too many things to explain. * I did not include any beginning-end cutscenes nor a leveling up system. I wanted the player to be able to play, relax, and see how they progress through time, kind of like a JRPG. * The mission system is unique in that you play one-way missions where you are assigned a specific goal to meet. Then you go back in the future and play missions until the time to meet the goal is up. * There are 3 ways to play: 1-only goal (eg. To survive) 2-same goal but different time (eg. To survive each day) 3-different goal but the same time (eg. To always survive while growing population) * Growth is optional, at the cost of a day per person * At the end of each day, you can look at the player's stats and see which day was the most enjoyable for them, in terms of happiness or satisfaction from reaching their goal. This can be helpful in deciding which day you should play again. It's also a way for the player to relax for the next day. * You can view the player's stats, goals, and progress on a HUD-like display. * You have a special goal where you can acquire an item from another player, "The Great Escape". * You can build relationships with people by talking to them. * In "The Great Escape" you can buy and sell items with other players. * In "The Great Escape" you can play missions with other players by choosing to tag them as "friends". * You cannot befriend players you have not already met in game. * You can send a friend a message by pressing R at any point during the game. * You can post a message in your friends' journal by pressing A after checking their name in the HUD. * There is a Friends List in the menu where you can see who you have met in game, their messages, and what missions you were sent on together. *

You can not send messages to players who are already tagged as friends. c9d1549cdd

They are often more than helpful and cannot be sold. These sets are described in a separate description. When you start playing as a wizard, you will find that the end of the dungeon looks like a maze. This is no ordinary maze. There are some surprises, so keep your eyes open! Loot everything you can. Use your artifacts to advance. When you start playing as the werewolf, there are no undead monsters. Beware of the spells of the enemies. Shoot them with your crossbow. Loot them. Carefully avoid them. If a trap kills you, you will lose part of your progress. You can replay the Memory of the Deep Dungeon, but you will lose all your progress. One

What's new:

Cozy Grove is a public park on the southern edge of Portland, Oregon's Hayhurst neighborhood. Once a private estate, its grounds are now a public park and play area. The main park area, with a lawn area and horseshoe pits, contains playgrounds and picnic tables and is largely unencumbered by trees. The property's trails include paved trails and pathways for cycling, dog walking, and strolling and a nature trail. The park is bordered by Southwest Fullerton Boulevard, Batsell Street, Wall Street, and the Willamette River. A basketball court is on the grounds, as well as two playgrounds, one near the office, the other near the top of the hill on the west side. The park was designated by the city as a tree canopy and wildlife habitat in 1966, and was named for former Mayor Robert Bedell for his services to Forest Park in 1949. Geography Cozy Grove is located at the southern edge of Portland's Hayhurst neighborhood, at the intersection of Southwest Park Avenue and Southwest Fullerton Boulevard. The Willamette River runs roughly north and south through the park. The adjoining streets are part of a stormwater area that experiences extreme flooding during the rainy seasons. The topography of the park is very level, situated on a hill with bluffs overlooking the river on the west side and bluffs with parks below on the other three sides. Cozy Grove's western border is Park Avenue and on the west side of that street is an area of soft soil that is a remnant of the Willamette terraces. There are trees in Cozy Grove, but not as many as in other parts of the park and the area around the Willamette. A small neighborhood lies along West South Fultondale Boulevard, which runs between the river on the west and Park Avenue on the east. The east-west trail along the river passes along South Fultondale Boulevard, which forms the park's eastern border. Southwest Wall Street runs parallel to the park, and further along that street is the Southeast Portland Skatepark, which is maintained by the Northeast Portland neighborhood. The park is in the southernmost part of the Portland Police Bureau's watch district, which is policed by the Southwest District. Cozy Grove contains several paths with sidewalks that lead downhill, as well as more standard paved paths for walking and biking. A
