Learn How to Edit a Photo in Photoshop 1. Understanding Photoshop Elements Before even opening Photoshop, you need to understand what Photoshop Elements is, and what it is not. Elements is Adobe's freebie version of Photoshop, and it's available on both Windows and Macintosh platforms. Elements is simpler and more of a beginners' version of Photoshop than most desktop computers come equipped with. It provides a basic set of tools that enable you to do some basic editing of pictures, as well as its own folder system. For example, you can organize your files in collections so that you can quickly pick up where you left off working on a project. Elements is a powerful tool, but it is not Photoshop. Elements has its own set of controls that make up its workspace, but to use the full power of Photoshop, you need the desktop version. To get the most out of Elements, you need to understand how it works and try to undo its way of working to get to the true Photoshop experience. While Photoshop is also owned by Adobe, it is much more powerful than Elements and has multiple overlays and image types that Elements does not. Also, Photoshop is not as friendly to beginners. You'll find it difficult to get around with Elements, so you'll have to spend more time learning the basics before you can start the real work of editing. For example, when using Photoshop, you can create an image with certain types of layers. Elements does not let you create this type of image, so you'll have to perform many of the image's editing steps manually using several layers. When you use Elements, you can only open files with a.jpg or a.tif extension and save files in the Windows.jpg or.tif format. Also, it does not support the RAW format. To use Photoshop Elements, you need to download it onto your computer from Adobe's website. 2. Opening Photoshop Elements To open Photoshop Elements: 1. If you are on a Windows computer, click the Windows Start button and choose Photoshop Elements 12. 2. If you are on a Mac, click the Applications icon in the Finder and choose Photoshop Elements 12. 3. Open the Elements application. 4. Click the Create button,

As the semiconductor industry has progressed into nanometer technology process nodes in pursuit of higher device density, higher performance, and lower costs, challenges from both fabrication and design issues have resulted in the development of three-dimensional designs, such as a fin field effect transistor (Fin FET) and the use of a metal gate structure with a high-k (dielectric constant) material. The metal gate structure is often manufactured by using an “gate-last” process in which the final gate structures are fabricated after the source and drain regions are formed. However, there are challenges to implementing such features and processes in complementary metal-oxide-semiconductor (CMOS) fabrication. For example, silicide formation in source/drain regions can cause high resistivity, and it is difficult to achieve contacts with a high aspect ratio in source/drain regions.

Afghanistan’s Taliban sues US for $1bn
Afghanistan’s Taliban on Tuesday sued the United States for $1 billion in a case over a war that has killed thousands of people, highlighting the distrust of the government as international donor aid dries up and the country slides deeper into chaos. The bombing of residential buildings has killed and wounded civilians on a scale unseen since the 1980s, even as Taliban kidnappings and attacks escalate. The suit, filed in the US District Court in Manhattan, demands the United States pay compensation “of at least $1 billion” to victims of US drone strikes and for failing to block the war. “Our history with the US is one of war and suffering caused by US involvement with our country,” spokesman Suhail Shaheen said of the suit. “Now, after almost two decades of war, the US is continuing to cause harm to Afghan families.” The claim asks the court to assess the extent of harm to the families of three members of the Taliban killed in a November 12 drone strike in Nangarhar, eastern Afghanistan. It also names US President Donald Trump, who has presided over a surge in drone strikes, as a defendant. A month before, a drone strike killed Taliban commander Mullah Mohammed Nur, a top commander in Afghanistan’s most deadly Taliban faction, the Haqqani network. “President Donald Trump is violating the Constitution and waging war without the constitutionally-mandated declaration of war by Congress,” the lawyer for

Risk factors for loss to follow-up of HIV-positive pregnant women receiving antiretroviral treatment in Kinshasa, the Democratic Republic of Congo. To assess risk factors for loss to follow-up of HIV-positive pregnant women receiving antiretroviral treatment in Kinshasa, Democratic Republic of Congo. Retrospective study of HIV-positive pregnant women receiving antiretroviral treatment at the Royal Tropical Institute in Kinshasa, Democratic Republic of Congo from 2000 to 2003. Known outcomes for the women were assessed by means of a questionnaire. Demographic and psychosocial characteristics were retrieved from the patients' files. Univariate and multivariate analysis were performed to identify risk factors for loss to follow-up. A total of 1,676 women were followed for a mean of 50 +/- 29 months. Fifty-seven percent (1,011/1,676) were lost to follow-up. The reasons mentioned by the patients for not attending visits were sickness, pregnancy-related difficulties (n = 492), and death (n = 476). In multivariate analysis, loss to follow-up was associated with young age (P = 0.0002), living in Kinshasa (P = 0.004), being married or living in a stable partnership (P = 0.001), having a history of infertility, and having no social support. No association was observed for parity, previous abortions, being too busy to attend visits, child care responsibilities, and having an easy access to hospital (either through a referral or through the purchase of care by the patient). Although traditional estimates of loss to follow-up rate in developed countries are between 10 and 20%, the loss to follow-up of HIV-positive pregnant women in Kinshasa was as high as 57%. These results suggest that patient- and treatment-related factors were the major reasons for loss to follow-up.
